How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest do you have?	Because CFM is a Registered Investment Advisor, we have a fiduciary obligation to our clients. When we act as your investment adviser, we must act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, the way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask us about these conflicts because they affect the recommendations we provide you. Here are some examples to help you understand what this means. The Firm compensates one of its custodians, Schwab, for referrals made by Schwab to the Firm. The Firm receives research and additional benefits from its custodians without cost but clients do not pay more for investment transactions effected as a result of these benefits. Conversation Starter. How do your financial professionals make money?	Our financial professionals are paid a salary based in part on the revenue generated by the assets under management for each investment advisor representative. They may also receive a small bonus for new clients added to the firm. This structure is a conflict of interest in that the compensation is based on the amount of assets overseen by each advisor.
